Dublin—The forbidden convention of Irish republican army leaders ended Monday, after voting to maintain the army to support the "republic of Ireland."

The authority of the dail eireann to use the army for the free state was repudiated and allegiance to Eamon De Valera was pledged.

Sixteen leaders were appointed to control a separate republican army which will refuse to obey orders of the provisional government.

The convention represented approximately 12,000 troops.

An immediate coup against the provisional free state government was discussed and rejected.

A drastic boycott of Belfast, as reprisal for murders of Catholics in Ulster capital was voted.

Eamon De Valera consulted with the new leaders.

MAIN INTAKE OF WATER PLANT IS CLOSED 2 DAYS

Work of Constructing New Emergency Intake Delayed by Accident

The intake of the waterworks plant which was closed since Saturday was reopened Monday. During the time it was out of commission a supply of water was secured through the emergency intake which is about to be replaced by R. J. Wilson Construction Co.

The construction company had just completed its coffer dam and was about to remove the old pipe when the main intake filled up. A portion of the dam had to be removed to make it possible for the pumping station to get its supply. The accident will retard operations for several days.

Most of the material for the new intake has arrived. A carload of 38-inch cast iron pipe, sidetracked in the yards of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway Co. will be unloaded within the next two days.

POLICE BAFFLED BY MYSTERIOUS DEATH

Mutilated Body of Man is Found Floating in River at Milwaukee

By United Press Leased Wire
Milwaukee—The mysterious death of the man whose mutilated body was found floating in the Kinnickinnic river here Saturday, had not been solved Monday.

Police, after investigation of several clues Sunday, have been unable to unearth any leads. They would tend to help solve the identity of the man.

Murder, suicide and accident have been advanced as theories, but one by one they are being swept aside when facts were unearthed that seemed to preclude possibility of all three.

It was thought for a time yesterday afternoon that the body was that of Anton Pzpiejewski. Within a few hours afterwards, however, it was learned that Pzpiejewski was alive and working at Kohler.

Dr. Victor Alderson, president of the Colorado School of Mines, said the invention would revolutionize the oil industry.

ASK LIVING WAGE FOR RAIL WORKERS

Railroad Union Leader Declares Modern Business Law Unfair to Labor

By United Press Leased Wire
Chicago—Bert M. Jewell, president of the railroad department of the American Federation of Labor, demanded before the United States railroad labor board Monday that the carriers pay their employees "at least a living wage."

Jewell challenged the right of railroad to petition for cuts in the pay of employees because the roads "could not afford to pay the existing scales."

"The so called law of supply and demand will never afford a living wage in a system organized according to modern business principles," said Jewell.

"Out of the annual yield of any industry, three things must come: Two of these, costs and wages, should be constant. The third, profits, should be the only variable factor."

Jewell's statement was made in answer to the appeals of the roads for a 10 per cent reduction in rail men's wages.

$1,000,000 LOOT TAKEN FROM SHIPS

By United Press Leased Wire
New York—Federal secret service men and police joined forces Monday in an effort to arrest an organized band of looters believed responsible for the stripping of between $400,000 and $1,000,000 worth of furnishings from United States shipping board vessels anchored in the Hudson near Peekskill.

The looting was discovered during inspection of the 164 ships wintering in the river.

Evidence so far obtained leads federal agents to believe that the robbers reached the vessels when the river was frozen over and the huge quantity of material was carried over the ice.

LAW FINALLY PUTS END TO CHILD'S ROMANCE

By United Press Leased Wire
Prairie du Chien, Wis.—It took two weeks to shatter the romance of Violet Ahrens, 14-year-old daughter of a dairy farmer here, but the job was effectually consummated Monday when Joe Burns, her farmhand lover, was arraigned in court on a charge of eloping with a minor.

Burns, 21, eloped with Violet on March 14, leaving her father, who had employed him to work on his dairy farm, gasping. Sheriff J. S. Herold began a search, even took a trip to Des Moines, Iowa, and finally caught the pair last Friday just after they had been refused a marriage license at Ladysmith, Wis.

Violet, back home Monday, declared she "had enough romance."

Senate Action On Pacts Encourages Friends Of League

Ratification of Four Power Treaty Taken as Indication That America is Abandoning Old Policy of Isolation.

By DAVID LAWRENCE
Copyright, 1922 by Post Pub. Co.
Washington—Ratification of the four-power treaty abolishing the Anglo-Japanese alliance on the one hand and formally placing the United States in the Pacific league of nations has given decided impetus to the growing movement for more international cooperation instead of national isolation.

The group in the American senate which has insisted that the United States get along without political involvement with either nations was found to be less than one-third so that President Harding now can count upon a two thirds vote in any proposals he may make for clearer understanding with other nations.

The four power treaty vote is a big precedent. Democrats and Republicans who voted for it cannot consistently change their positions when Mr. Harding for example proposes that the United States become a member of the reparations commission to safeguard American rights in Europe. The vote in favor of American cooperation in questions arising from the war is considered ample justification for a similar vote in favor of cooperation in maintaining American rights three thousand miles from the other coast line.

Friends of the league of nations plainly are happy over the result. They see the Harding administration going through a process of evolution on foreign policy which will lead to bigger and broader international action. While it is true, for instance, that the United States found fault with the program of the Genoa economic and financial conference, declaring that some of the items in it were political instead of economic, the fact is the American government didn't want to go to Genoa until it had demonstrated to the world that the treaties negotiated at the Washington arms conference could be ratified. Another exhibition of senate resistance to a treaty signed by an American chief executive was feared.

Most of the same language is used almost the same language in referring to such a possible consequence, as did Woodrow Wilson after he came back from Paris. There are Republicans and Democrats today who somehow feel that America has vindicated herself before the world in standing by a contract made by the constitutional executive. To that extent they admit that the senate performance after the Versailles treaty while technically constitutional and perhaps thoroughly understood in America was morally embarrassing to American influence and is still the subject of much ill-feeling in Europe where the alliance made on April 7, 1917, between the United States and the allied powers was welcomed as a departure from American traditional policy of no alliances with Europe.

Although the Senate has adopted a reservation proposed by Senator Brandegee stating that the four power pact is not an alliance and does not commit the United States to armed force, there are few Democrats who believe the league of nations was a commitment to armed action. They think it was just as flexible and gave as much freedom of action as the four-power pact.

GERMANY SEEKS TO DELAY ANSWER TO ALLY DEMANDS

German Spokesman Declares Berlin Cannot Fill Moratorium Conditions

By United Press Leased Wire
Berlin—Germany cannot fulfill the conditions of the allied moratorium proposals, government spokesmen maintained Monday.

It was authoritatively denied, however, that the government had rejected the allied reparations commission's conditions.

Chancellor Wirth and Minister Rathenau will continue the German policy used so often since the end of the war: "Negotiate, but never say 'no.'"

The allied demands include payment of 750,000,000 gold marks in cash and 1,450,000,000 in kind during 1922.

Germany undoubtedly will ask further negotiations, possibly attempt to have the matter brought up at Genoa.

Chancellor Wirth will make an important speech in the reichstag Tuesday when he will demand a vote of confidence. This may clear up the present obscurity.

The possibility that the Wirth government might fall was seriously considered.

AIRSHIPS SEEKING MISSING TEACHER

By United Press Leased Wire
Minneapolis—Airplanes from three Twin City fields Monday joined in the search for pretty Loraine Schneider, school teacher, who disappeared more than a week ago from a hotel here.

The fliers will thoroughly cover country territory around the twin cities, working on the possibility that the girl was slain and her body hidden in some field or woods.

Despite this theory detectives are still working on the belief that Miss Schneider is held prisoner in some roadside house or resort nearby.

Decision is Made in Response to Demands of Millions of Mohammedans

By United Press Leased Wire
Paris—Turkey is to be reestablished as an independent sovereign nation.

In response to demands of millions of Mohammedans throughout the Moslem world, including India, the allied Near East commission Monday officially announced decisions restoring to the Turkish nation "a vigorous independent national existence."

Foreign ministers of France, Great Britain and Italy who met last week to consider revision of the treaty of Sevres and to bring an end to the Greco-Turkish war, Monday issued a communique formally announcing the following decisions:

1. Thousands of square miles of territories, including the entire country of Anatolia and a large portion of Thrace, are to be returned to Turkey.

2. The Turks are to be permitted a larger garrison at Constantinople, while the allied army of occupation is to be considerably decreased.

3. Turkey is to be permitted to increase its army from 50,000 to 85,000.

4. The allies will occupy the Gallipoli peninsula to safeguard the entrance to the Dardanelles straits.

5. Commissions will be set up on which Turkey will be represented, to revise the financial and judicial clauses of the Sevres treaty.

These concessions to Turkey are made conditional upon acceptance by the Turks of armistice terms to end the Greco-Turkish war.

DEMOCRATS WANT DECLARATION OF HUGHES IN PACT

Hughes Declaration Reserves American Rights in Mandated Islands

By United Press Leased Wire
Washington—Democratic senators may succeed in forcing Senator Lodge to make the Hughes "declaration" a part of the four-power treaty.

Lodge Monday was considering two means of meeting the point. Democrats raised to the effect that unless the declaration was ratified by the senate as part of the four-power pact, it would prove of no benefit to the United States.

The declaration reserves American rights in the mandated islands in the Pacific and excludes domestic questions such as the Japanese problem on the Pacific coast from operation of the four-power treaty.

These steps were under consideration.

1. To ratify the declaration separately, but to include in the resolution of ratification that the United States understands it to be a party of the four-power treaty and as binding as the treaty.

2. To add the declaration to the resolution ratifying the supplementary treaty now pending, which excludes protection of the Japanese homeland from the four-power treaty.

Either would make the declaration a binding part of the treaty, constitutional lawyers in the senate agreed.

Ratification of the supplementary treaty is assured, whatever happens to the declaration, Lodge claimed Monday.

He said he was sure of 52 votes for it and that no more than 23 against it were in sight.

INSANE WOMAN RESCUED FROM TOP OF HIGH TREE

By United Press Leased Wire
Washington—After remaining perched in the top of a 60-foot tree for more than 18 hours, clothed only in a nightgown, Mrs. Anne Lybomaska, inmate of St. Elizabeth hospital, was taken down by guards Monday.

After all means of inducing her to come down were exhausted, a scaffold with a large platform was built up to her perch.

The woman spent all Sunday night in the tree, threatening to leap to her death in the ravine every time would-be rescuers approached her frail perch.

The woman escaped from the hospital about 6 p. m. Sunday by breaking a window. When hospital attendants started in pursuit of her she climbed a tree, with remarkable agility. Every effort by attendants to reach her brought piercing screams and a threat to jump.

Police were appealed to and in turn called firemen. But the woman, shouting at the top of her voice, warned them all away, declaring she never would come down.

Washington—The retail cost of food on March 15 this year was still from 26 to 51 per cent higher than 1913, the department of labor estimated Monday based on investigations in ten representative cities of the country.

Decreases, however, were registered for the month ending March 15 over the previous month.

2 Men Killed When Cofferd Dam Breaks

Sudden Rise of Wisconsin River Results in Tragedy at Wisconsin Rapids—Ten Men Rescued from Flood.

By United Press Leased Wire
Wisconsin Rapids, Wis.—Two men are dead and ten narrowly escaped death, when the papermill coffer dam at Birou, near here, gave way Sunday before a sudden rise in the Wisconsin river and swept the men who were working upon a pit below the dam, down the stream, it was learned Monday.

The dead are: Fred Getzlaff and John Skymanski, both of this city. Getzlaff's body was recovered late Sunday night but search was continued Monday for Skymanski's body which is thought to have been carried down the stream.

The 12 men were working on a new grinder pit below the coffer dam of the Consolidated Water Power and Paper company mill when the dam, without warning, suddenly gave way. They were swept into the tail race, a cut off from the mill race. Two escaped the rushing waters by dashing up the stairway from the pit.

Several of the men managed to catch hold of a large barge and saved themselves. One swam to a small island and another grasped a plank floating down stream until rescued.

Skymanski who could not swim, was seen to go down and it is believed was carried down stream. Getzlaff was caught behind some iron structural work and pounded to death against the concrete wall by the waves.

As a result of the sudden rush of the water the mill was flooded causing thousands of dollars damage to the large turbine engines.

Mystery surrounds the sudden rise of the water, which officials believe might have been caused by release of water by a dam upstream.

DUTY ON LEATHER MAY START SHARP CONGRESS BATTLE

Duty Proposed in Congress Will Boost Price of Shoes, Opponents Say

By United Press Leased Wire
Washington—Senate finance committee action in putting a duty on hides, boots, shoes and leather is destined to start a fight in congress, the consequences of which may be as great as those of the row a decade ago over "Schedule K" in the Payne-Adams bill.

The proposed tariff, if retained will make shoes cost from 30 to 50 cents a pair more than at present, according to authoritative figures furnished the United Press Monday.

Representative Hawley, Oregon, formerly for such a tariff, is now strongly opposed to it.

"As the tariff bill passes the house, hides, boots and shoes and leather will go on the free list. The senate finance committee Republicans, however, determined upon a 15 per cent ad valorem duty on hides, a 10 per cent ad valorem on boots and shoes and a 10 to 25 per cent on leather.

Hawley figures that only the packer tanner would benefit from the new regime. The farmer stockman would get an estimated $34,000,000 for his products but he and his farm workers would have to pay $28,500,000 more for their products than would be the case under a free listing. He estimates that the average increase in the price of shoes would be 40 cents a pair.

In addition to the hides battles, there will be a fight on the sugar schedule and probably on the lumber schedule. Louisiana, the great cane growing state, wants 2 cent a pound duty on Cuban sugar while the finance committee Republicans have fixed the rate at 16 cents a pound. Likewise the Louisiana growers are displeased with the "mild treatment" accorded black strap molasses used for feeding cattle.

BLAINE DEMANDS LOCAL UNITS CUT THEIR TAX LEVIES

Chief Executive Declares Taxes Payable in 1923 Will Show a Decrease

Madison, Wis.—A program of "economy and retrenchment all along the line" was demanded of all state and local government officials by Governor John J. Blaine in a memorandum sent broadcast to state, county, and municipal officers of every Wisconsin city Monday.

Spring municipal elections were emphasized by the chief executive's memorandum as "fully as important in the all-important matter of taxation as national or state elections."

Taxes for 1922, payable in 1923, will show a substantial decrease for the first time in 25 years, Blaine proclaimed.

"Not a single department of the state government overran its appropriation and had to resort to emergency or deficiency appropriations during the first year of my administration," the governor said.

"It is necessary to elect local officers who will cut every unnecessary expense and exercise close supervision over the cost of county and city government," the message declared.

Burglar, With Toy Revolver, Gets $500,000

By United Press Leased Wire
Chicago—Complete confession that he robbed scores of homes of $500,000 worth of loot in the last six years and the only weapon he used was a toy pistol was made to police Monday by Edward Collins.

Collins' tale of crime marked him as one of the most remarkable criminals of Chicago's underworld.

Only $20,000 worth of loot was recovered. Mrs. Mary Collins, his wife, was released after Collins told police, "It was all my work. She didn't know I was a burglar."

MOST GOOD FOR MOST PEOPLE IS KINSMAN'S AIM

Candidate for Mayor Discusses Policies at First Ward Meeting

"I believe there can be but one aim in city government and that is to secure the greatest possible good for the largest possible number," declared D. O. Kinsman, candidate for mayor, in an address before a large number of people in First ward school Saturday evening. It was the first of a series of addresses in all parts of the city to acquaint the voters with Dr. Kinsman and his views of city government. "The whole is larger than any of its parts, therefore the city cannot be effectively managed by favoring any club, class or institution," Dr. Kinsman said. "Such management of public affairs simply leads to trouble and confusion and postpones the day when the ideal for city government is attained. Should I become mayor I shall be glad to listen to any individual or group of citizens who are aiming to further the best interests of Appleton. It has been said that the women's club will have undue influence with me in case the citizens should select me as mayor. The women's club has high ideals and has been a real service to our city. I believe it will ask for nothing which will be out of harmony with the good of Appleton. If it should, my convictions regarding the development of our city in the common interests of all would necessitate my refusing such a request. Nor would it further the interest of any class for a mayor to support an unjust demand for even temporary gain. A square deal for all advances the cause of every interested party. Again it has been said that if I should be elected mayor I would especially serve the interests of Lawrence college. It is my belief that the higher interests of city and college are one. It should be remembered that the ordinances governing the relation between city and college are made by the city council that the mayor has no vote in the city council except in case of a tie so should he be even so disposed, which I shall not be, to further the interests of any institution at the expense of our city he could do but little."

Dr. Kinsman also discussed the school problem, amusements and taxation.

DEBATERS WIND UP WESTERN TRIP WITH ANOTHER WIN

Lawrence Team Wins All Its Debates on Long Journey Through Country

Winning the last of their four debates the Lawrence college debating team closed a successful season. The last debate was held with Colorado college at Colorado Springs, Saturday evening. The exact vote of the judges is not known, but it was favorable to Lawrence.

The highest hope entertained by Coach F. W. Orr for his team was that three out of the four debates would be won. Exceeding all of his expectations the men have won their four debates. The western trip became a march of triumph.

It is interesting that the negative team has been so successful, since in the triangle debates on the question of the open shop, all of the affirmative teams won. The teams that have been met on the westernward trip have had more experience in debating this question than had the Lawrence team.

Alfred Root, the strongest speaker on the team, is an Appleton boy. He is an experienced debater, and knows many of the "tricks of the trade."

NEW TRIAL WILL BE ORDERED FOR DR. LARSEN

MRS. KOEHLER GAINS 18 POUNDS TAKING TANLAC

Troubles of Six Years Standing Overcome and She Hasn't a Trace of Rheumatism or Dyspepsia Left.

"Tanlac restored me to health two years ago and I have felt fine ever since," said Mrs. Mary Koehler, 123 1/2 Howell Ave., Milwaukee, Wis.

"What it did for me was nothing less than remarkable as I had suffered nearly six years from a dreadful form of stomach trouble. I was bothered a good deal from rheumatism, too, especially in my arms and shoulders and was so nervous I got very little rest either day or night."

"Tanlac was simply an untold blessing to me as I began to get better almost from the first dose and it wasn't long before I could eat anything. I wanted without suffering the least distress afterwards. I gained eighteen pounds in a short time, the rheumatism left me and I am happy to say I got rid of constipation, from which I had suffered for years. I can never praise Tanlac enough for what it did for me."

Tanlac is sold in Appleton by Voigt Drug Co. and by leading druggists everywhere.

Martin Peerenboom, Kimberly, did the Currie Nation act. He appeared to have been unsteady on his feet while making his way along Oneida street about 9:30 Sunday night and lunged against the window, shattering it. Patrolman Rankin very kindly assisted him during his moments of weakness, escorting him to the city jail.

Michael Koster was found by the police about 6:45 Sunday night at Rankin and John sts. in an intoxicated condition and was given a ride downtown in the Black Maria.

Whatever the stuff was that Philo Albrecht, 1116 Second-st., drank had something in it that made him feel like fighting. He was arrested at College-ave. and State-st. after 11 o'clock Sunday night for creating a disturbance while intoxicated.

John Normile, Kaukauna, was victim No. 4 of the "white mule" notion. He was arrested by the Kaukauna police and was escorted here Monday morning for trial.

Judge A. M. Spencer heard the pleas of the quartet and supplied Albrecht, Peerenboom and Normile with five days' recreation on the stone pile. Koster, because of his age, was ordered confined in the county jail for five days.

Miss Nellie Hox spent the weekend at her home at DePere.

EDGAR THOM WEDS TOLEDO GIRL IN ELABORATE AFFAIR

Wedding of Appleton Man is One of Social Events of Season in Ohio City

Edgar R. Thom, Appleton, was one of the principals in an elaborate wedding ceremony in Toledo, Ohio, when he took Miss Mary Milner of Toledo, as his bride, according to a description of the affair in a Toledo paper. The wedding was described as one of the most gorgeous events of the season.

Following is the newspaper article in part:

"A wedding of surpassing beauty was that of Mary, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William L. Milner, to Edgar Robertson Thom of Detroit, son of Mrs. Peter R. Thom of Appleton, Wis. 'The Oaks, the beautiful suburban home of the Milners, under the hands of decorating artists, became a dream castle, with walls lined with southern smilax forming a background for flat wall vases filled with acacia, lilacs and snap dragons, while the fireplace in the living room, before which the vows were exchanged, was majestically lovely banked with Woodwardias ferns towering to the ceiling with golden cathedral candelabra and Easter lilies in the foreground. Throughout the spacious home the wedding motif of yellow with delicate touches of lavender and blue was exquisitely carried out.

"Patricia Richardson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. O. Richardson, 3rd, a flower maiden, and Master David Luck, cousin of the bride, and son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Luck, as train bearer, were the bride's only attendants.

"The bride, one of the loveliest of the season, wore a gown of white satin, cut decollete and exquisitely combined with duchess lace and pearls. The court train was lined with dandelion yellow and the bridal veil was caught to the collar with duchess lace banded with orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of lilacs, yellow spray orchids and forget-me-nots.

"Mr. Thom was attended by his brother George Thom of Appleton, Wis., John Ingold of Detroit and Charles Luck, uncle of the bride, drew the ribbons.

"Mrs. Milner, mother of the bride was beautifully gowned in cream lace veiled in crystal headed peach bloom chieft with which she wore a corsage of lavender shaded orchids.

"Mrs. Thom, mother of the bride, wore a gown of supple blue Canton crepe, steel headed, and corsage of violets and lavender orchids.

"Miss Mary Thom wore a gown of rose georgette and carried Ophelia roses and an orange fan.

"Miss Lois Thom was attired in pink chiffon velvet with corsage cluster of sweetheart buds.

"Mr. and Mrs. Thom left late in the evening, the bride wearing a costume of navy blue Point twill with coat of dark blue duvetyn trimmed in natural ermine and small black hat.

"After June 1, Mr. Thom and his bride will reside at 8107 St. Paul ave., Detroit, Mich.

IDAHO CITY TO BE MOVED TWO MILES

American Falls, Idaho, a city of 2,000 population, is to be moved two miles up the river on which it is located to make room for an immense reservoir which the government is about to construct for irrigating purposes, according to Ben Schwartz, a former Hortonsville young man, who has been located in that part of the country for several years and who is visiting Appleton relatives.

The government has provided a new site for property owners, which it has platted and is now equipping with sewers, electric lights and water. Property owners are to be remunerated for their present property and are to be given preference of property in the new city.

An immense dam is to occupy the site of the present city and the reservoir is to furnish water for irrigation of several thousand acres of the surrounding country on which dry farming has been conducted for several years. The land is extremely fertile but crops have been a failure for the last few years because of insufficient rainfall.

Explanation of the government's offer through the department of commerce to take motion picture films in various cities has been received by Secretary Hugh C. Corbett of the chamber of commerce in response to his inquiry on the subject.

M. F. Leopold, of the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce, in charge of this work, says the government will prepare pictures showing methods of production in manufacturing plants and employment of American machinery and products and that these will be distributed officially by the department.

Films are prepared at actual cost to the manufacturer or other business house and are carried under the title line of the United States government "in cooperation with" the firm where the pictures were taken. These are released to schools and educational institutions, chambers of commerce and civic organizations in America and foreign countries for free use.

Mr. Corbett has referred this matter to the industrial and advertising committee for further study and recommendation.

They'll Lie In Bed Sunday And Hear Sermons

An Appleton man who has been reading about radio development sat musing about conditions a few years from now.

"Ho-hum," he mused. "Won't it be nice when we can lay in bed Sunday mornings and listen to all the big sermons by wireless telephones? Just hook the attachments to the bed spring and lay there and listen.

"It'll be kind of nice to hear the organ play and the choir sing with their big soloists," he went on.

"And think how nice it will be for us men. We won't have to buy Easter bonnets for our wives. They won't have any excuse to go to church Sundays and won't need any swell clothes so they can show off."

"Yes," spoke up a young man nearby who sings in a local church choir. "When they hear my voice in some big city, they'll be sure to send for me and declare me a big artist right away."

Then the talker turned back to the daily grind in 1922, hoping to be a radio through invention a few years from now.

Rub Away Children's Colds

Let them breathe in healing vapors all night

A "vapor lamp in salve form," Vicks is the DIRECT treatment for all cold troubles. Absorbed, like a liniment, and at the same time, inhaled as a vapor, the medication reaches immediately the congested air passages.

Kiddies do take cold so easily! A change of weather—or just getting the feet wet—frequently starts them sniffing.

Some little ones go from one cold to another—never have a chance to build up any strength.

A mistake to keep them indoors! And so, the fear of recurring colds leads many mothers to keep their children too much indoors.

This is a mistake. Children kept too warm are most apt to take cold. There is nothing like fresh air play to harden little folk, so that they do not take cold so easily.

The mother's problem

It is best, therefore, to let children run outside in all weathers.

Of course, some colds will result. The problem has been how to treat these colds without constant internal dosing—so disturbing to their delicate stomachs.

Vicks answers this need

Vicks Vapor Rub, the invention of a North Carolina druggist, offers the solution.

Applied externally, it can be used as freely and as often as desired, without any harmful effect.

And use of Vicks at night does not require shutting the windows. Just leave the bed-coverings loose about the child's neck and the rising vapors will be inhaled all night.

Often averts spasmodic croup

One application of Vicks at bedtime often serves to prevent a threatened attack of spasmodic croup.

And when an attack comes on with-out warning, in the night, use of Vicks as directed frequently brings relief in 15 minutes.

A family standby

For other cold troubles of children, such as sore throat, chest colds, head colds and tonsillitis, Vicks gives equally quick action.

For surface inflammations it is useful every day—cuts, burns, bruises, scalds, boils, itching skin troubles, chapped skin and chilblains.

And just as good for cold troubles of grown-ups—bronchitis, catarrh, asthma, laryngitis, pharyngitis.

Doubly a direct action

Vicks works immediately and directly in affections of the air passages.

Like a liniment, it is absorbed thru and stimulates the skin. This relieves soreness, loosens phlegm and eases difficult breathing.

Like a vapor lamp, the application over the throat and chest sends on healing vapors, which are inhaled with each breath directly into the congested, inflamed air passages.

Invented by a Southern druggist

Some years ago, Lunsford Richardson, a druggist of Greensboro, N. C., was seeking a better way to treat cold troubles.

He found how to combine the best of nature's remedies for colds into salve form.

Camphor, Menthol, Eucalyptus, Thyme, Turpentine and other volatile ingredients are so mixed in this salve that their vapors are inhaled until application brings contact with the natural heat of the body.

Then these ingredients are released in the form of vapors, given off evenly, steadily and thoroughly for hours after application.

Thus, Vicks is really a vapor lamp in salve form.

Ingredients of great antiquity

Some of Vicks ingredients have been tested by use for many generations past.

For instance, Menthol is a derivative of the Oil of Peppermint, which was produced in Egypt 3,000 years ago, and is mentioned in the Icelandic medical books of the Thirteenth Century.

Several of the ingredients of Vicks—Camphor, Menthol, Eucalyptus, Thyme, Oil of Turpentine—are given credit in the United States Dispensatory, our highest authority on drugs and their actions, for the very effects that are most desired in all kinds of cold troubles.

COW TAKES HIGH PLACE IN STATE

W. H. Steffenson's Cow, Appleton Fair II, Goes Into 36-Pound Class

One of the highest production records in Wisconsin has been made by Appleton Fair, II, a purebred Holstein cow owned by W. H. Steffenson of this city.

In a 7 day official test completed recently this cow gave 611.3 pounds of milk and 29.48 pounds of butterfat or the equivalent of 36.38 pounds of butter as a 7-year old. The Holstein-Friesian Association of Wisconsin has recorded this test and is watching the Steffenson herd for other developments.

A stablemate of the above cow, Fayne Julia Johanna also made a commendable record when she produced 588.1 pounds of milk and 21.70 pounds of fat or the equivalent of 27.12 pounds of butter in seven days as a senior 4-year old.

Several high records previously have been made by Mr. Steffenson and his work has been commended by L. L. Odham, executive secretary of the state association.

THE SECRECY CLAUSE

It is distressing to see the income tax law of Wisconsin made the mere subject of political sermintage such as has been going on at Madison during the past week. The income tax law is one of those clean-cut, progressive measures that has come to us after many years of debate and investigation and we think, in principle, that it is sound. It proceeds upon the theory that persons and corporations should pay taxes in proportion to their ability to pay. That is as it should be. By reason of it, at this time, the tax burden is much more reasonably spread out than it could be under any other known system. If Governor Blaine persists in his apparent policy of tacking up on every corner the income tax list, like a poll list, flaunting every person's income, he is going to make the income tax law so distasteful by making it violate the American sense of decent privacy, as to jeopardize the very law itself.

As we view the situation at Madison, the contest between Governor Blaine and his opponents has been over this simple proposition: shall the income tax returns be open to the public, that is, to every curiosity seeker, or shall their inspection be limited to public officials who have some duty to perform in investigating them and ascertaining their correctness? The Governor's theory is that if the returns are open to the entire public much valuable information will be brought to the tax officials, possibly by prying neighbors and others who have nothing to do excepting to interest themselves in something that does not concern them. Could anything be more wholly impractical? Can tax liability be made to depend upon rumor, hearsay, tattle and gossip? The means of acquiring information submitted by the Governor seem to us to be the most feeble, uncertain and unreliable that could be submitted.

It is no answer to this situation to say that some taxpayers are not paying their correct amounts under the income tax law. No system of taxation has yet been devised which is perfect. We must deal entirely in averages. The corporations of the state keep books. They have bookkeepers: larger corporations have systems of bookkeeping wholly impossible to change in order to defeat the state from securing a proper tax. The chances are that ninety per cent of the corporations of Wisconsin are paying their just taxes under the present law. Indeed, if all individuals were paying in as correct measure as the corporations are paying, the greatest proper criticism against the present law would be answered. Individuals seldom keep books and less often keep bookkeepers. There is far more likelihood that misstatements and errors creep into the returns of individuals than in the returns of corporations. And yet Governor Blaine lays particular stress upon the likelihood of a corporation escaping some part of its income tax. That makes detectable reading in political circles. The extremist, who is too busy to work himself but spends his time criticizing others, will smack his lips with a fair amount of gusto after he concludes that the Governor is on the warpath against the "corporations."

The Legislature of Wisconsin is progressive. It is progressive to the point of the practical. Beyond that it will not go. The Legislature is not visionary and apparently it is not playing politics. Governor Blaine found support from only twelve members of the Senate and thirty-eight of the Assembly, which shows that his party have been materially weakened since the last meeting of the Legislature, when the vote on the same measure was stronger in his favor.

Wisconsin has had the delight of another session of its Legislature at a great expense to its taxpayers and without there being the slightest need thereof, unless it is that the Governor needs an "issue" for the approaching election. Of course we do not mean to say that the Governor called this session of the Legislature for a purely political or personal reason, although it clearly appears that there was no substantial reason for the extra session.

The Post-Crescent hopes that the income tax law has come to stay. Inequalities that may arise under it can be easily ironed out by responsible legislative action, but it should be neither played nor tinkered with for the mere sake of doing something with it. In its execution it must not be made burdensome else the public will become out of patience with it and demand its repeal. That is a consideration which must not be overlooked.

THERE MUST BE COAL

In 1902, two decades ago, lacking a few months, a dispute between the anthracite coal miners and the operators threatened the nation with calamity. Theodore Roosevelt was president.

Roosevelt stated a simple case, thus: "Three parties are affected by a coal strike, operators, miners, and the general public. This quarrel is between the first two. I am going to protect the third. There must be coal."

On this basis representatives of both sides were summoned to Washington. Roosevelt sent them into conference, and when no agreement resulted, the president brought both sides up sharply against his original statement. Many efforts failed and despair spread over the country, everywhere except in the White house, where truculent statements from either side were met with a significant silence while the national executive let not a day pass without demanding, for the public, a response to his first demand.

Finally Roosevelt suggested a commission of investigation to examine the issues involved and tell the country which side was wrong; then he told the miners and operators bluntly to accept the plan and mine coal, or take the consequences. What consequences? Public condemnation, of course, of the side in the wrong, but public condemnation backed by government weapons. Then, as now, there was no warrant of law justifying federal interference. There had been no interference with federal authority, either by stoppage of mails or resistance of United States court process. This Roosevelt explained carefully, adding significantly that while so far no state had asked federal aid, if anyone of them did so the entire resources of the nation, military and otherwise, would be devoted to operating those mines.

The answer is history. The side in the wrong had to yield. Roosevelt's position is good today. The public is supreme, and the American government, to do its full duty, has to find some way to prevent a paralysis of our activities. That is what government is for. Possibly President Harding has plans yet unrevealed. The public is patient. But of one thing official notice may be taken: There must be coal. The American people will not tolerate the strike, nor will they forgive easily the administration that fails to prevent it by ascertaining which side in this controversy is wrong and making it yield.

ISOLATION IMPOSSIBLE

It is said that the president is strongly of the opinion that this government should be represented on the reparations commission. The issue has been presented in sharp form in connection with the inability of our textile industry to get needed dyes except by buying them from the German trust at current prices. On the other hand, under the provisions of the Versailles treaty the allied powers get these dyes through the reparations commission at prewar prices.

Every day it is becoming clearer that America can not stand aloof from the rest of the world, and also that it is not easy to end a joint war by a separate peace. Even in the case of the cost of our army of occupation we have been met with the feeling that we should not claim any right when we are unwilling to perform what were felt to be correlative duties. Fortunately the armistice covers this point, and the case is so clear that it cannot successfully be disputed, but there would have been not even the shadow of a misunderstanding if we had not pulled away from our associates and made a separate peace with Germany. There is further trouble about certain other claims that we have against Germany which must be adjusted, along with the claims of other governments, by a mixed tribunal, on which we can not be represented without the consent of congress. And now we have this dye complication.

It all goes to show that the confusion which exists, and it is likely to grow worse, is entirely due to the refusal of the senate to consent to the ratification of the Versailles treaty. The consequences of that mistake we shall feel for a long time, and in many ways. It is no longer a question of idealism, at which many of our leaders were disposed to sneer, but also one of finance, and economic adjustment. Whether the mistake can be corrected is the question. Certainly it is time that the world was hearing something of President Harding's association of nations.

Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician and Author

Dr. Brady will answer all signed letters pertaining to health. Writers' names will never be printed. Only inquiries of general interest are answered in this column, but all letters will be answered by mail if written in ink and a stamped, self-addressed envelope is enclosed. Requests for diagnosis or treatment of individual case cannot be considered. Address Dr. William Brady, in care of this paper.

THE OXYGEN SHORTAGE

The way I had on the superlative health value of exercise, the reader might reasonably conclude (a) that I enjoy exercising my muscles, and (b) that I don't believe in drugs. Both conclusions would be far from correct. I'd much rather sit around than indulge in any kind of muscular exertion, and when I am sick I eagerly swallow all the drugs my doctor prescribes for me. I'm a doctor myself, but I shouldn't care to take a chance on doctoring. The doctor who attempts to diagnose or treat his own ailments has a fool for a patient and the rules of syntax and propriety prevent me from indicating what manner of being the layman who essays such feats has under treatment.

This department deals only with the ways of health and purports to teach people how to keep well. In providing such information or instruction it is not the intention of this newspaper to furnish to readers medical advice about the diagnosis or treatment of individual cases, for that is a matter to be entrusted to the personal medical attendant. In preaching daily exercise as a means of conserving health I am appealing to well people. Many invalids should not indulge in exercise at all; some should exercise only under the advice of their physicians. Exercise is a medicine which is good for all well people and therefore I freely recommend it. I'm a great believer in the return to nature, at least as far as that direction as environment and the law will allow. This applies in the questions of clothing, housing, food and bathing. It applies particularly in the question of muscular exercise.

Travelers, explorers and scientists tell us that the primitive or uncivilized or semicivilized races seem to be free from many of the minor and major maladies which we enjoy. Among the reasons assigned for this must be included greater use of the muscles for primitive man.

There are numerous so-called functional troubles of men and women of the sedentary class that are clearly due to under oxygenation and that may be overcome, if not too long established or too far advanced, by the simple expedient of absorbing more oxygen, and the only practicable way to accomplish this is by taking sufficient daily exercise. I used to mention this in my talks, but I refrain from doing so now, because I don't want readers to write and tell me I have described their cases better than they can describe them themselves. However, it is a long and fascinating list, and it would cut in on the nostrum habit alarmingly if any considerable number of victims were to learn that the symptoms melt away when a little more oxygen is supplied to the auto-intoxicated system. Take care, now, that you do not jump to a false conclusion from what I have just said. Don't imagine that you can get this desirable additional supply of oxygen into your system by simply practicing what is known as deep breathing. You've got to work for it; you've got to take active general exercise. That alone increases the vital capacity. Deep breathing which is involuntary or automatic with hard exercise is the only deep breathing worth thinking about.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Raw Oatmeal

Is the eating of raw oatmeal harmful? I am informed that it is a symptom of anemia when one craves raw oatmeal. (Mrs. N. A.)

Answer—"It is wholesome to eat and is a symptom of nothing else than good health."

Off to Bermuda

I expect shortly to take a trip to Bermuda. Please give me your advice about the prevention of seasickness. Also tell me whether you would resort to powdered or dried milk for the feeding of an 11 months old baby on such a trip or depend on the milk obtainable on board. (Mrs. J. E. I.)

Answer—Use the dried milk powder. I dare not print the dosage of the medicine I suggest to prevent seasickness, lest some typographical error spoil my sleep, but I will gladly send you by mail description of the method, on receipt of your request together with a stamped self-addressed envelope.

Resume of American and Foreign Newspaper Opinion

THE IMPENDING COAL STRIKE

That responsibility for forcing a speedy ending of the proposed coal strike must be assumed by all departments of the government is one thing upon which all of the nation's newspapers seem to agree. Just how existing authority, if it is sufficient, is to be utilized, however, is something upon which the papers are far from being in agreement. There seems to be strong endorsement for the administration proposal that the operators be compelled to negotiate with the miners. Alleged arrogance on the part of the former generally is condemned and criticized. The newspapers take a very hopeful view of the outlook. The time of the strike, the hold, makes it unlikely that there will be any real suffering by the public at large. The stocks on hand are sufficient to hold all large concerns, public utilities and the like for at least three months. By that time public opinion, in the belief of the editorial writers will have compelled a settlement.

Secretary Davis, in the opinion of the New York World, (Dem.) erred in "not making it plain to the operators that if they continue to refuse to confer with the miners they will make themselves responsible for the strike. The miners are willing to talk terms. The operators are not. It becomes then, a strike of the operators against the miners." However, certain that it is the duty of the government to prevent a strike under any circumstances. "The present dispute is not a private affair," it declares, and points out that after a strike takes place a commission must be named to mediate for peace. It concludes by insisting that the operators and the miners sign now "can't sue" and do not do just a contract as could the commission which President Harding would appoint. They will serve their own interest as well as the public by so doing."

The Norfolk VIRGINIAN-PILOT (Ind. Dem.) also insists that an immediate conference between the parties would bring about a settlement. "Only by doing so (meeting the miners) can the operators absolve themselves for their share of the blame for what is to come," it says. The Scranton TIMES, (Dem.) in the center of the anthracite region, and therefore presumably well posted, reflects a feeling of optimism toward the contemplated strike. "The coal deposits of the United States are so abundant that both sides saying 'we feel confident that neither miners nor operators this year will act hastily or jeopardize their own or the country's interest.'"

The manner in which the bituminous strike was settled by former President Wilson and Attorney General Palmer is criticized sharply by the Chicago TRIBUNE, (Ind. Rep.) and it strongly opposes a superficial conference in which both sides will fight "only for their own interests." It believes that the operators want a strike because they now are in "an excellent position" to win it. "The causes," it says, are many and varied including "the fluctuating prices of coal, the methods of mining, resale, speculation, transportation difficulties and innumerable others. The only way permanent peace and justice can be brought into the coal industry, and permanent calm and stability to dependent industries and consumers, is to reach a solution of such problems. Anything less will be a makeshift."

A strike will increase agitation for federal supervision of coal mining in the opinion of the Albany N. Y. TIMES UNION, (Dem.) "Such sentiment will become so strong that Congress will not dare ignore it, the paper adds. The Grand Rapids HERALD (Rep.) entertains similar opinions. "It is due either to Congressional cowardice or Congressional indifference," it declares, "that no medium now is available to prevent a coal strike." The Dayton, O., DAILY NEWS (Dem.) also wants a permanent settlement. "Coal controversies have come to be expected in America," it says. "The only way to settle them is by the use of the public service, which hamper public service and threaten to interfere seriously with the affairs of our people."

Because the public knows that it is entitled to coal it will uphold the government in any measures taken to prevent or speedily end the strike. The Pittsburgh TRIBUNE, (Ind. Rep.) says that the management in the coal industry to show a due regard for the public welfare, the paper believes. The Lexington, Ky., LEADER (Rep.) holds that public interests are paramount. "The question of compensation is certainly capable of adjustment by arbitration," it says, "with out the prolonged agony of a strike with its inevitable and irreparable losses falling upon both parties to the controversy and the innocent public as well."

"Coal mining is our most unbecoming industry," insists the Buffalo EXPRESS (Rep.) and it is high time that the leaders of the country turned their backs to the coal industry. The Boston CHRISTIAN SCIENCE MONITOR (Ind.) in this connection, points out that "the fact remains that in the 'open shop' districts the industry seems to be more nearly stabilized than in the closed shop fields. It suggests that inquiry might show whether this is so and concludes: 'The only thing that the public desires to learn regarding the coal industry as a whole.'"

"That the coal consumer will make his position plain if compelled to pay higher prices for fuel by reason of the 'stubborn and anti-social attitude' of any element in the controversy is pointed out by the Chicago DAILY NEWS (Ind.) which suggests that 'un-necessary lockouts and strikes will hasten strict regulation. The price of freedom in any industry affected by public use and concern is due regard for the public interest.'"

The Mobile REGISTER (Dem.) is inclined to blame the miners. "It is very disheartening," it says, "that at the very beginning of a revival of business the miners should make demands of the sort and, upon refusal, vote to go on a strike. The wages the bituminous miners are now receiving are those of the peak period." And the Wichita, Kan., DAILY EAGLE sees in the situation an excellent reason for the Federal Government copying the Kansas industrial court law. "Hand off is not the proper course," it says, "neither is handcuffs on the advisable rule. We need a compromise."

VALUE OF THE SAAR MINES

London—The Morning Post says that the question of the valuation of the Saar Coal Mines remains in dispute to be settled by the financial experts attached to the Allied Finance Ministers. These mines are situated in the occupied area on the French side of the Rhine, and the French will be compensated for the loss of the mines under the Peace Treaty the right to exploit these mines as part of the indemnity due to this country, it being stipulated that Germany should be credited with their value. Up to the present, however, it has been found impossible to carry them into the reparations account, as the interested parties have been unable to agree as to the value at which they should be assessed. The French are particularly interested in the question, as they have already had an unusual amount of trouble over the same matter. One reason why the French were unable to secure the award of any immediate cash for the German reparations payments, it will be recalled, was that the rest of the Allied Governments held that France must be debited with the capital value of the mines as an advance payment on the sum due to her. This ruling the French Government has always disputed.

The question now comes up of the exact value of the mines. The German Government insists that the mines as a whole are worth 1,057 million gold marks, whereas the French claim the value to be not more than 300,000,000 gold marks. The German experts argue that at July, 1914, the mines under exploitation were valued at 480 million marks, plus another 575 million marks in deposits. The French insist, before that the value of the unexploited deposits should not be taken into account until the date when it is found advisable to begin making use of the coal they contain. As to the mines actually under exploitation, the French insist that instead of having a potential output of 19 million a year, they produce only 3,400,000 tons in 1920 and 3,820,000 tons in 1921, while the Germans themselves extracted only 13,217,000 tons from them in 1913. The French allege that they have been unable to get back to pre-war output of the Saar mines because of the reckless methods of operation adopted by the Germans during their exploitation of the mines during the war.

PARIS NEWSPAPER QUARREL

Paris—There is certainly food for the cynic in the Paris newspaper dispute. War has been declared the "Petit Parisien," which has the largest circulation of any French journal, and which, in spite of certain connections, is found by the LONDON OBSERVER correspondent, to be comparatively fair and free from the phobias from which most of the other journals suffer—and the former members of the Trust from which it has broken away. Its principal opponents are the "Matin," fiercely anti-Germans and deplorably anti-English, the "Echo de Paris," narrowly nationalist, the "Journal," inclined to scares and sensation, and the "Petit Journal," which, like the "Petit Parisien," is a limited competition between the popular sheets. There was a "ring," but the "Petit Parisien," denouncing the understanding, is establishing duplicate offices and printing presses in the provinces—notably at Tours. The rival organs, issuing a common manifesto, apparently wish to defend the provincial papers which, indeed, in spite of the excessive centralization of France, are of importance.

"That there should be a battle royal for circulation is not unnatural, but some of the reasons urged against the 'Petit Parisien' are rather amusing. Its competitors protest against the 'commercialism' of the 'Petit Parisien' and invoke the liberty of the Press, which they believe is in danger should the 'Petit Parisien' succeed—as is not likely—in crushing them. They speak of the possibility of foreign money some day controlling a journal that will have a virtual monopoly. One must, of course, deplore the excessive power of a Press which is guided chiefly by business considerations—whether in France or in England—but it is impossible to have much sympathy for newspapers which, quite obviously, are not exclusively governed by ideas of public service; who, like their counterparts in other countries, think chiefly of what will sell, and pander to the low taste of the uneducated public. It is a somewhat delicate task to comment upon standards of journalism in France, but in present conditions it sounds rather silly to place what is a mere business quarrel on the higher ground of free thought and public service."

Pick Your Food

By Dr. R. H. Bishop
There are so many good foods that act as laxatives that it is surprising to note the great amount of laxative medicines and pills sold.

There are four different classes of laxative foods. Foods rich in cellulose comprise one class. They are celery, string beans, dried beans, lentils, spinach, onions, figs, prunes, raisins and other fruits eaten with their skins, cereals from which the bran has not been removed, as rolled or cut oats and wheat.

Another class consists of foods yielding vegetable acids, as lemons, oranges, tomatoes, rhubarb, apples, elder and other fruits and fruit juices, except blackberries.

The desired results can be obtained by taking fruit or fruit juice the first thing in the morning. For sensitive stomachs, very mild fruit should be selected, or fruit juice diluted with water.

Liberal serving of fruit has much to recommend itself as a means of avoiding and counteracting constipation. Foods producing slight gas formation make up a third class. They are honey, molasses, spinach, onions and cauliflower.

They tend to ferment slightly. The gas generated breaks up hard masses in the intestine and acts as a slight stimulant to movement. Carbonated water may do the same thing.

The fourth class consists of lubricants. People who have an imperfect digestion for fat can take it in liberal quantities as a laxative. One or two tablespoons before breakfast and the same at night is effective.

HIGH SCHOOL AT DALE

Editor Post-Crescent,

I read the item "Need Encouragement" in the Post-Crescent. What we need isn't encouragement. Our daughter finished the eighth grade last June so she is one of the 185 common school graduates in the country that are not in school, not because we didn't want her to be, but because she finished at 12 years and no child can travel from 7 to 16 miles every day. In summer it is possible but there are more school months that it can't be done. Where are the parents that want to send a little girl 12 years away from home? Why they can't even comb their own hair

No wonder they take to bobbing it. No wonder folks call them flappers. As far as the $72.00 goes to tuition, where does the board come from, and even if you could board them at a reasonable rate, they are too young to be sent by themselves. I can count about 60 right here in the town of Dale that are not in school for the same reason that both of my daughters, one 12 and one 16, are not in school. It is a shame that Dale can't have at least two years of high school, the ninth and tenth grades, and let our babies grow up before they are turned loose.

Mrs. Maybelle Running.

Q. What is the speed of the elevator in the Washington Monument? How fast does the fastest elevator run? S. C. W.

A. The Office of Public Buildings and Grounds says that the elevator in the Washington Monument makes 100 feet a minute. As the elevator shaft in the Monument is 500 feet high, it makes 100 trips in five minutes. The two elevators in the Woolworth Building, which operate from the ground to the 54th floor, rise 700 feet in one minute and these are the highest rise and fastest traveling elevators in the world. Although elevator service is provided in the Eiffel Tower, Paris, the height of nearly 1,000 feet, three lifts must be used to reach the top, the highest rise of a single lift being about 450 feet.

Q. Is it true that a man who has a Congressional Medal of Honor gets a pension of $2.00 a month? W. M. McB.

A. The period for which an additional $2.00 a month is given to a soldier who has a Congressional Medal of Honor dates only from the time that the act was committed for which the medal was granted, to the date of discharge from military service.

HAVE DARK HAIR AND LOOK YOUNG

Nobody Can Tell When You Darken Gray, Faded Hair With Sage Tea

Grandmother kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and attractive with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied, with wonderful effect. By asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, all ready to use, at very little cost. This simple mixture can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair.

A well-known druggist says everybody uses Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied—it's so easy to use, too. You simply dampen a comb or soft brush and draw it through the hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, it is restored to its natural color, and looks glossy, soft and beautiful.

POLICE SOON TO ARREST FOR AUTO LAW VIOLATIONS

Chief Prim Warns Against Old License Plates and Glaring or Defective Lights

Here are two ways to keep your name off the police records if you own an automobile.

1. Write for that 1922 license plate at once and do not drive your car until it arrives, if you have not renewed your license already.

2. See that the lenses of your lights are properly shaded at the top or are of the approved nonglare variety, that your light bulbs are adjusted to prevent glare and that both lights at the front are in working order.

George T. Prim, chief of police, has issued this friendly warning to motorists as the warmer weather approaches and pleasure cars again are being put into use. He expects every driver to comply fully with the laws and is giving a brief period in which machines may be put in shape.

ARRESTS WILL RESULT

Officers will soon receive orders to arrest every driver whose car bears 1921 license plates, and will round up those who operate machines at night without proper adjustment of lights. Several new regulations concerning trucks also are to be enforced within a short time. One is the use of pleasure car licenses on light delivery trucks rather than a truck license in violation of the law.

Trucks are required to display signs stating their weight when empty, their weight when loaded and the combined weight of machine and load. This information must be lettered prominently on each side of the truck and must not exceed the capacity advertised by the dealer. Trailers also must display this information. This law went into effect January 1, 1922.

Mirrors are to be used on all large trucks and busses so drivers may obtain a clear view of any approaching vehicles, according to a law effective January 1, 1922. Machines are supposed to have been equipped with them already.

FISH NOT DYING IN LAKE WINNEBAGO

Condition Found in Northern Lakes Does Not Apply Here —Plant Many Fish

Very few fish in Lake Winnebago have been killed off by the ice, as has been the case in northern lakes, according to expert fishermen in this locality. It is said that the heavy snow crust on the ice has prevented air from reaching the fish and that many have died in the smaller lakes.

Many anglers are hoping the state will plant more pike and muskies in Lake Winnebago this year. A number of those interested in game fishing are preparing to ask Erayton O. Webster, commissioner in charge of fisheries, to have more of the pike and some black bass planted in this lake. It is pointed out that no body of water in the state is more accessible or more of an attraction to tourists and visitors to the state and that every effort should be made to develop it for good fishing.

It is stated that the state conservation commission is preparing to make its greatest catch of fish eggs for hatching this spring. It is expected that between two hundred and three hundred millions of pike eggs will be gathered before the season is completed.

Can't Import Bees
Importation of bees into the United States, except from Canada, is prohibited under postal regulations according to notice received from the department by Appleton postoffice. Tim has been done to avoid transmission of bee diseases from one country to another. A disease called Isle of Wight is said to be quite prevalent in some nations and bees are banned so the malady will not reach swarms in United States.

Medina Men Are First Farmers in County to Have Cow Reaching This Record

Tests conducted in the Holstein herd at the B. F. Winckler & Sons farm, Medina, reveal not only that several of the cows have unusually high production records, but that those men are the first dairy farmers in Outagamie-co. to show a 31-pound butter record from a Holstein cow on a 7-day test.

The cow that earned this top reputation is Calumet Abbecker DeColantha, 6 1/2 years old. She gave 696.4 pounds of milk in the test, producing 31.25 pounds of butter. Her flow of milk is unusually high, for she yielded 106.8 pounds on her best day, or approximately 48 quarts.

Nearst in comparison among farmers are the Holsteins at the W. H. Steffensen farm. Three of Mr. Steffensen's cows have 30-pound official records, but these cows do not rank in the Outagamie-co. competition because the farm is located just over the line in Calumet-co.

The Winckler cow is entered in the silver trophy cup contest of the First National bank for the best 7-day record. A 3-year old daughter of this cow is patterning after her parent, producing 67 pounds of milk on her best day and 459.9 pounds of milk or 1.6 pounds on butter on a 7-day test. Ten other cows of the Winckler herd made high records in the test.

Appleton Thoroughly Advertized In Duluth

Wives of Rotarians Help Prove Appleton is Livewire City

Echoes from the district convention of the Rotary club held this year in Duluth show how well Appleton delegates succeeded in advertising their city. Thus far the wives of the Rotarians have not been given credit for their part in placing their husbands in the foreground.

A letter received by Howell G. Thomas, secretary of Appleton Rotary, from E. C. Wilson, secretary of the club at Ironwood, Mich., asks for a copy of a telegram which was sent to the conference by the wives of the Appleton delegates and which was read at one of the meetings. The delegates, already placed in the limelight by their striking costumes which were manufactured by the Appleton Superior Knitting works, were forced to stand before more than 1,500 other Rotarians while the message was read.

It was a song written to the tune "Jingle Bells" censuring the men for "running" to the conference without their wives even after special invitations had been extended to the women. The song follows:
"Bunch of stags, selfish stags,
Caps upon your dome,
Capes of blue, gaudy too,
Leaving your wives at home.

Oh, Pikers dear, Pikers dear,
Did you fear your wives twould shock
Were they obliged to sleep in the car
With Biff and George and Doc?
So your wives, all their lives,
You would leave at home;
Never mind, next year you'll find
They'll make their plans alone."
Various methods were used by Appleton Rotarians to advertise their city as a paper manufacturing center. They were equipped with 25,000 milk bottle caps with the printed words, "Active, Attractive Appleton," with which they literally deluged the city of Duluth. Ten thousand napkins, which were distributed at meals, were inscribed with the Rotary wheel.
During the banquet at which plates were laid for 1,650 persons, the local delegates distributed 1,500 roles of crepe paper about one and one-half inches wide which were thrown about until the room looked like a mass of spiderweb. The milk bottle caps, the napkins and the rolls were made by Tuttle Press.

WIVES HAD TEM ON
The uniforms with which the Appleton delegates made themselves conspicuous were delivered to the Rotary club on Tuesday preceding the convention. The men left Wednesday evening and were dumfounded when they arrived in Duluth to receive post cards showing their wives attired in the uniforms.

CHAPTER I
To take Mark Sabre at the age of thirty-four, and in the year 1912, and at the place Penny Green is to necessitate looking back a little towards the time of his marriage in 1904, but happens to find in the good light for observation. Encountering him hereabouts, one who had shared school days with him at his preparatory school so much as twenty-four years back would have found matter for recognition.

A usefully garrulous person, one Hapgood, a solicitor and much. "Who do you think I met yesterday?" Old Sabre. You remember old Sabre at old Wickamote? . . . Yes, that's the chap. Used to call him Puzzlehead, remember? Because he used to screw up his forehead over things old Wickamote or any of the other masters said and sort of draw out. "Well, I don't see that, sir. . . . Yes, rather. . . . And then that other expression of his. Just the opposite. When old Wickamote or some one had landed him, or all of us, with some dashing punishment, and we were gassing about it, used to screw up his nut in the same way and say, "Well, what does he mean, you ass?" and he'd start gassing some rot till someone said, "Good lord, fancy sticking up for a master! And old Puzzlehead would say, "You sickening fool, I'm not sticking up for how he looks at it and it's no good saying he's wrong." . . . Hal Funny days. . . . Yes, I met him. . . .

"Yes, in the office I saw him. . . . He's in a good looking down there at Tidborough. Dashed good. Fortune. East and Sabre. . . . Never heard of them? Ah, well, that shows you're not a pillar of the Church, old son. If you took the faintest interest in your particular place of worship, or in any Anglican place of worship, you'd know the name of the man who was anything for the Church from a hymn book or a hassock or a pew to a pulpit or a screen or a spire you go to Tidborough, East and Sabre. Tidborough. Similarly in the scholastic line, anything from a birch rod to a desk—Fortune, East and Sabre, by turn and the best. No, they're the great, the great, church- and school-furnishing people.

"Married? "Oh, yes, he's married. Has been some time. I believe, though they've no kids. I had lunch at his place one time. I saw him. . . . Tid you ought to go to paint one of your pictures—where he lives—Penny Green. Picturesque, quaint if ever a place was. . . .

"Yes, you go down there and have a look, with your sketch-book. Old Sabre'll love to see you. . . . Oh, very nice, distinctly nice. Pretty woman, very. Somehow I didn't think quite the sort of woman for old Puzzlehead. Didn't appear to have the remotest interest in any of the things he was so all about and he seemed a bit fed with your sort of talk. Hers was all gossip—all about the people there and what a rum crowd they were. Devilish funny, I thought, some of her stories. But old Sabre—well, I suppose he'd heard 'em before. Still, there was something something something about the two of them. You know that sort of—sort of stiffish feeling you sometimes feel in the air with two people who don't quite click."

CHAPTER II
Thus, by easy means of the garrulous Hapgood, appears persons, places, institutions; lives, homes, activities; the web and the tangle and the amenities of a minute fragment of human existence. Life, an odd business. Into life we come, mysteriously arrived, and see our feet and on we go, functioning more or less ineffectively, passing through permutations and combinations; meeting the successive events, shocks, surprises of hours, days, years; becoming enquired, submerged, founded by them; all the while nevertheless each his own individuality, as swimmers, carrying each his undetachable burden through dark, enormous and cavernous seas. Mysterious journey! Uncharted, unknown, and finally—but there is no finally! Mysterious and stunning, and not end-to-the mysterious and tremendous adventure! Finally, of this portion, death, disappearance—gone! Astonishing development! Odd affair! Mysterious and baffling conundrum to be mixed up in! . . .

Come to this pair, Mark Sabre and his wife Mabel, at Penny Green, and have a look at them mixed up in this odd and mysterious business of life. . . .

Westward of Penny Green is Chovensbury; behind Tidborough the Penny Green, like Rome, had not been built in a day. The houses of

He laughed. It struck him as rather comic; and High Jinks and Low Jinks tittered broadly, losing in the most astonishing way the one her severity and the other her glumness. (Continued in Our Next Issue)

TOUCH OF COLOR

For summer gowns Paris is breaking its spell of black. There is almost always a touch of color, perhaps red green on slim satin slippers, a sea green facing for sleeves and giraffe or a Chinese blue facing for an uneven hem line.

THE NUT BROTHERS

(Ches & Wal)

"HA! JINKS EH? HIGH JINKS AND LOW JINKS, WHAT?"

And hated untidiness. It implied customs and manners of what he called "boarding-house ideas"—the idea that a man must have an untidily comfortable apartment into which he can retire and envelop himself in tobacco smoke, and where he "can have his own things around him and have his pipes and his pictures about him," and where he can wear "an old shooting jacket and slippers"—and he loathed and detested all these phrases and the ideas they connoted. He had no "old shooting jacket," and he would have given it to the gardener if he had; and he detested wearing slippers and never did wear slippers; it was his habit to put on his boots after his bath and to keep them on until he put on shoes when changing for dinner. Above all, he loathed and detested the vision which the word "den" always conjured up to him. This was a vision of the door of a typical "den" being opened by a wife, and of the wife saying in a mincing voice, "This is George in his den," and of the wife's house females peering over the shoulder and coming in fatuously at the denizen who, in an old shooting jacket and slippers, grined vacuously back at them. To Mark this was a horrible and unspeakable vision.

The matter of the den and another matter, touching the servants, came up between them in the very earliest days of their married life. Mabel had been busy "settling things," and she took him around the house with delicious pride and happiness. Mark, sharing both, had his arm linked in hers. When they came to the fourth sitting room Mabel announced gaily, "And this is your den."

Mark gave a mock groan. "Oh, lord, lord, den." "Yes of course, den. Why ever not?" "I absolutely can't stick den." He glanced about. "Who on earth's left those fearful old slippers there?" "They're a pair of father's. I took them specially for you for this room. You haven't got any slippers like that."

He gazed upon the heels, down trodden by her heavy father. He did not much like her heavy father. "No, I haven't," he said, and thought grimly, "Thank God!"

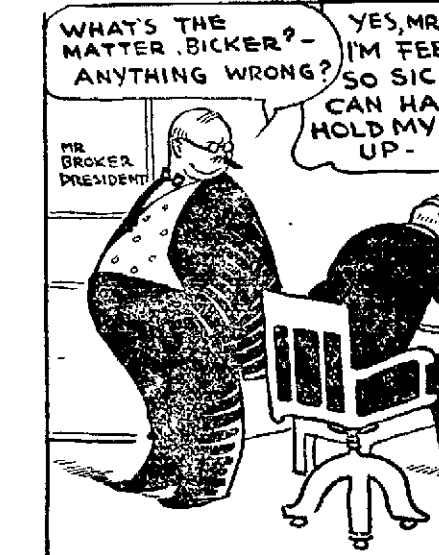

Mabel opened the kitchen door. "The master's come to see how nice the kitchen looks." Two maids in black dresses and an extra large amount of stuffy star-bellied aprons and caps and streamers rose awkwardly and bobbed awkward little bows. One was very tall, the other rather short. Mabel looked from the girls to Mark and from Mark to the girls, precisely as if each were exhibiting rare specimens to her husband and her husband to her rare specimens. And in the tone of one exhibiting planned, dried, and completely impersonal specimens, she announced, "They're sisters. Their name is Jinks."

Mark, examining the exhibits, had been feeling like a fool. Their name humanized them and relieved his awkward feeling. "Ha! Jinks, eh? High Jinks and Low Jinks, what?"

GIRL SAYS DEAD ARTISTS DIRECT WORK ON CANVAS

Former Dentist Declares She Took up Painting Because of Mystic Urge

By Ruth Abelung
New York.—The world of art and psychic research is watching the work of Flora Spore, a dentist who became an artist, firmly convinced that the old masters seek to attain their unrealized ambitions through her.

Miss Spore believes the brushes in her visible hands are moved by the invisible fingers of artists long dead, who are making her the medium of creating a new art, free from the limitations of the physical, abounding in the strength of the spiritual.

"I am a dentist by profession," says Miss Spore, "and had my own office in Bay City, Mich., where I employed two assistants. It never had occurred to me that anything but dentistry would be my life work, until after my mother died."

"Before her death I never had any interest in spiritualism or psychic phenomena, but shortly after her death I received a communication, ordering me not to go to my office any more, but to paint."

"It seemed utterly foolish at first, but more voices kept repeating the mandate. So I bought some paints and dabbled with them evenings. But every morning after that I heard a protest when I started for the office."

"Now I never had touched a paint brush before."

"I sat down at my easel. Voices would tell me what brush to take and which paint to use and guide my hand in its strokes. They even told me the exact dimensions of the canvases to be painted."

"The voices became so persistent," continued Miss Spore, "that I decided to close my office and go to visit my brother, the acting governor of Guam."

"All of the time I was there I heard the voices urging me to return to the states and paint."

"In November the urge became so strong I had to obey. I reached New York in December and have been here painting since."

"There are five or six artists whose presence I feel while I am working. None revealed himself by name."

"There is one who calls himself Romano, and another, Perogri—I have never been able to get the ending clearly."

SOURCES OF INSPIRATION
Dore needs no identification. Raphael and by the latter's will was entrusted to finish the frescoes in the Vatican, left unfinished by the master. He died in 1883.

Perogri was rather an obscure Italian engraver of the 15th century. Some of Miss Spore's work is purely decorative, oranges, grapes and apples of heroic size, with a peculiar brightness of tone, and a very original method of color application.

Her landscapes have an oriental atmosphere and each one has a meaning. The back view of a dancing throng, and caught in its whirl through space just poised above the tree of death.

Adventures Of The Twins
Bird-Kite's Story
The next kite that came before the Fairy Queen was a bird-kite, and he, too, was in trouble.

"What can I do for you, my good fellow?" asked the Fairy Queen, kindly. Nancy and Nick wondered at her good nature. The Twins thought of their own impatience when their kites got tangled in trees or refused to go as high as their little owners wished them to, and they resolved to do better in the future. The Fairy Queen seemed to know this for she looked over and gave them an approving smile. Then she turned her attention to the kite again.

"Please, your highness, would you mind sending word to Billy Brown's mother that I didn't take her pearls?" answered the kite. "She thinks that I stole them, but honest, I didn't. You see the string broke and the pearls were fastened to my tail because Billy couldn't find—"

"Oh, hold on, hold on!" cried out the can't make head or tail of it?" Fairy Queen. "What's all this? 'Neither could Billy,' answered the bird-kite mournfully. 'That is, he couldn't find the tail to balance it when I was up in the air. A strip of old muslin would have done, but he couldn't find a thing. So he hunted around and all he could find was a string of pearl beads on his mother's bureau, which he tied on to me for a tail.'"

"Then he took me out and let me fly away up into the air above the tree-tops. But the wind was so strong that the string snapped and the wind blew me up here. Now I'm afraid they'll think I stole the pearls.'"

The Fairy Queen smiled. "I'll send Twinkle Toe back with the pearls," she said, "and Silver Wing will show you the way back to Billy's house."

NECK LINES
The boat line or bateau neck, which is almost round, remains very popular, but the newer Greek line is seen more often on the formal gowns. The Greek line is quite straight from shoulder to shoulder.

DEBUTS IN GOTHAM CUT TO $15,000

BY RUTH ABELUNG
New York.—Another blow has been struck at the high cost of living. There has been a reduction of 25 per cent or more in the cost of "coming out" parties in New York society!

Prohibition did it. A society-debut that cost $20,000 in the era of liquor was served can be done hapsomely these days for a mere $15,000. That's what hotel men say.

Society's season just closed in New York saw 30 rich debutantes introduced. Each party cost between $8,000 and $12,000—for the big party alone, not including clothes and jewels and the supplementary dinners, suppers and luncheons necessary to a correct coming out.

The most brilliant party of the season cost $20,000. That's the bill Clarence H. Mackay footed when his daughter, Miss Ellen Mackay, was introduced. There were 40 guests at dinner and nearly 2,000 at the dance and supper following. The party was given at the Ritz-Carlton.

Estimated of the probable itemized bill are these:

Dinner $ 800
Supper 4,700
Floral decorations 8,000
Music 4,000
Favors and incidentals 1,000
Rent of hotel 1,500

Next in brilliance and costliness was the debut of Miss Barbara Whitney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney. This party, given at the Plaza, is understood to have cost about $15,000. There were 1,000 guests.

Dinners served at the average coming out party cost from $8 to $12 a plate. Breakfasts and suppers are somewhat less.

Breakfasts are served, too, sometimes. The Whitney debut party wound up with a breakfast. Dancing doesn't begin until about 11 o'clock and "mad nights" aren't in order till 4 or 5 in the morning.

Most of the important debuts of society—that is, anybody who is anybody—are held at the Ritz. The rental of the ballroom alone at either the Ritz or the Plaza is about $700, and the rent for additional rooms for dining and ways easily doubles that sum.

Many of the young men who attend some debuts, according to insiders, are college boys who have no further credentials than an evening suit. But they are tolerated because the young women must have dancing partners.

There were more important debuts in New York society this season than in previous years. All were crowded into the period between Nov. 20 and Jan. 10.

Sunshine Canning

Strawberries for canning should be perfectly ripe, firm fruit. Over-ripe fruit loses its shape when canned and is less likely to keep well.

Look the berries over very carefully, cutting out bruised or soft spots and sorting the fruit. Use the whole perfect berries for canning and sunshine preserves and the small cut fruit for jam and marmalade.

CANNED STRAWBERRIES
This rule is for plain berries canned for table use. The proportions are calculated to suit the woman who is not equipped to can a large quantity at one time.

This method is a little different from the usual cold pack but is a very successful and satisfactory one. Six quarts berries, 2 cups cane sugar, 1 cup boiling water.

Wash and hull berries. Fill colander with berries and dip in a large pan of boiling water. Remove instantly and dip in a pan of cold water.

This quick blanching helps the berries to keep their shape during processing and insures against loss due to too much acidity in the fruit. Pack two quarts of berries in one quart jar. The berries are packed just as lightly as possible without crushing.

The jars and covers must be sterilized thoroughly before filling. Boil the sugar and water until a thick sirup is made.

Pour this heavy sirup over the fruit, filling the cans to within three-quarters of an inch. Adjust rubber water bath and boil half an hour. Count the time after the water starts boiling.

The water must cover the tops of the jars. When the water has boiled just 30 minutes remove from water and cool as quickly as possible.

Be careful not to put the cans in a draft, for cold air striking the hot jars in one spot will break them. Tighten tops and turn upside down to cool. Store in a dark, cool, dry place.

When dipping the berries in the pan of boiling water do not let the fruit remain a minute in the water. Dip in and right out and immediately into the cold water.

OPEN KETTLE METHOD
Do not cook more than enough to fill one can at a time. Put one cup sugar and one-half cup water in smooth stew pan. When boiling add berries and boil eight minutes. Use two quarts of berries for each quart can.

Fill sterilized jars with berries and add juice to cover fruit and fill can to overflowing. The fruit and juice must be boiling when put into the can and the can must be perfectly full to exclude all air.

If these two things are overlooked the fruit will not keep. More juice is formed when the open kettle method is used than when fruit is canned by the cold pack method.

Any juice left from the first can of fruit should be used for the second can. Add one cup of sugar and enough water to make one-half cup. Juice left after all the fruit is canned should be sealed while boiling and saved.

This juice can be used in drinks or combined with red raspberries or rhubarb in jelly or marmalade.

Declare Dividend
Directors of Quinton Oil and Gas company have authorized a dividend to stockholders of 10 per cent. Most of the stock of the company in the oil field at Quinton, Okla., is owned by Appleton people.

WETLESS WATER
MATERIALS: Ring or coin in basin of water, zinc stearate powder.

PROCEED: To recover the ring with your hand without wetting the hand.

SOLUTION: Sprinkle the zinc stearate powder on the surface of the water and rub some well over the hand. This powder has no attraction for water. Plunge in the hand, draw out the ring and the hand will remain dry.

GIRLS
Placing the grille on these straight narrow dresses is an important matter. Slender women can wear the grille low around the hips and thus emphasize their slenderness. For heavy figures, however, the grille should be at the top of the hips, thus giving an effect of less weight.
